By Digital Info Security Company

Dated: Oct 15, 2009

Westminster, CO- Digital Info Security Company (DISC) announced today that it has signed a Letter of Intent with MessageWatcher, LLC (MWL) to purchase its email archiving business.

Westminster, CO- Digital Info Security Company (DISC) announced today that it has signed a Letter of Intent with MessageWatcher, LLC (MWL) to purchase its email archiving business. The Letter of Intent is subject to the completion of a definitive merger agreement between the parties.

The purchase would include MWL's email archiving technology and customer base, providing DISC with an initial growth and potential future growth of its email archiving and compliance business. Also included is MessageWatcher time-saving software which allows customers to take their company's e-mail and instant messages and store them in an easily searchable, write-protected, on-line, database. In addition to the archive, MessageWatcher has advanced surveillance technology that allows you to catch any e-mail or IM that violates any of our customizable policies.

Prevent lawsuits or fines related to: sexual harassment, workplace harassment, workplace violence, regulatory violations, and illegal activity.

Stop employee theft of: intellectual property, customer lists, R & D, financial records, and data from Clients

Help maintain business continuity with: alternate DNS records, off-site e-mail storage (on-line and off-line), individual user access to real-time e-mail traffic, and support in the case of an emergency.

The MessageWatcher solutions provide performance, reliability and scalability with a focus is on mitigating the risk created by their clients' electronic communications. MessageWatcher has patent pending Novell Groupwise email archiving technology and is one of the few solutions that works with Exchange, GroupWise, Lotus Notes, Sendmail, and more. The purchase of MessageWatcher LLC would bring a great synergy with current DISC operations and more products for all of DISC's customers.
